[redacted] advised that candidates for office and their campaign committees must file a Registration Statement which indicates the names of the banks where contributions are to be kept. They also must file a Report of Receipts and Expenditures on April 10, July 10, October 10, and January 31 of each year with the January 31 report reflecting cumulative year to date totals. If receipts or expenditures total less than $1,000, the report can be waived. During an election year, a Report of Receipts and Expenditures must be filed ten days before and thirty days after a primary or general election. Also, Presidential candidates must file a report on the tenth of each month, only in an election year.
